So, you think your personal information is safe? Think again. Even if your name is Joe Biden, or you are the head of the FBI, you are still at risk of your information being hacked and misused. It was reported yesterday that a website using a Russian web address posted personal and credit information on various high profile individuals including Joe Biden, Michelle Obama, Hillary Clinton, Robert Mueller (the director of the FBI), Beyonce, Mel Gibson, and Paris Hilton, among others. Although these actions are brazen given the individuals at issue, this type of data theft occurs everyday and is extraordinarily disruptive to individuals and very costly for companies who house the information that is taken and misused. The Secret Service is investigating the incident.
