Teresa is a member and chair of the firm's Public Law Practice Group. She is experienced in bond transactions and has served as bond, underwriter's, borrower's as well as placement agent counsel. She has represented private institutions and local and county governmental agencies, including municipalities, port authorities, healthcare institutions and library systems on business, commercial financing real estate matters, construction and government relations. She also has experience with joint economic development zones and joint economic development districts, project labor agreements and diversity plans.

Teresa counsels with respect to all real estate acquisitions, divestitures, leasing, financing and development. She has represented individuals, corporations, non-profits and governmental bodies with all aspects of real estate development including land assembly, planning, zoning, environmental and financing, including public-private partnerships. Teresa's diverse real estate experience allows her to advise on all types of real estate transactions.

She also works with clients in developing and maintaining strong relationships with local and state officials, as well as community stakeholders, to advance clients' legal and legislative matters, particularly for non-profit, real estate development and gaming industry clients.

Teresa represents small business owners on various legal matters including but not limited to contracts, employment matters, intellectual property matters, litigation and construction matters.

Teresa is a graduate of the University of Alabama and Cleveland-Marshall College of Law.
