

Ben Panter featured in Chicago Tribune's "Shout Out"

Benjamin D. Panter | Monday, December 2, 2019

McDonald Hopkins attorney Ben Panter was featured in a "Shout Out" Q&A feature in the Dec. 1, 2019 edition of the Chicago Tribune.

In the feature, "Shout Out: Ben Panter, third-generation attorney and father of three," Panter discusses multiple topics, including how his family history influenced his decision to pursue a career in law, why he became interested in executive compensation, and the challenges of raising three children ranging in age from two to six.

To read the full discussion with Panter, who is the chair of McDonald Hopkins Executive Compensation and Governance Practice Group, visit the Chicago Tribune's website.

Ben Panter featured in Chicago Tribune

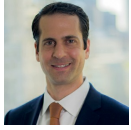

different businesses work and now people are going to be compensated as part of those businesses. ”

BENJAMIN D. PANTER

McDonald Hopkins

Chair | McDonald Hopkins Executive Compensation and Governance Practice Group

Benjamin D. Panter

Team member bio