

"Deciphering Obama's chemistry with Congress--or lack of it," LaTourette quoted in The Washington Post

LaTourette quoted in The Washington Post

IN THE NEWS | JAN 11, 2015

WASHINGTON — He hardly ever calls. When he does, it's all business.

And that's President Barack Obama's vibe with top Democrats on Capitol Hill.

With Republicans, there's even less chemistry.

But GOP congressional leaders don't show much inclination to buddy up to the president, either.

When the president sits down with eight top legislators — four from each party — at the White House on Tuesday, there's little expectation it will usher in a new era of comity and cooperation.

Click here to read the full article.