

CLEVELAND– The fifth episode of McDonald Hopkins’ bi-weekly podcast series MH Business Exchange has been released.

This week, host Mike Witzke is joined by James Boutrous, managing member in the firm’s Detroit office. In the episode titled “Terminating an employee, while protecting your business,” Boutrous informs listeners about the necessary steps their business must take when terminating an employee to avoid potential legal action. This is part one of a two-episode labor and employment discussion on MH Business Exchange.

To listen to this and previous episodes, subscribe to the podcast or sign-up to receive announcements when new episodes of MH Business Exchange are released, listeners may visit mcdonaldhopkins.com/podcasts.

On January 30, David Schelberg will complete the labor and employment discussion when he sits down with Witzke to discuss actions employers should take to help navigate legal disputes with their employees.
