

Episode 36: Cybersecurity trends for 2020

Christine N. Czuprynski, Michael P. Witzke | Tuesday, January 28, 2020

Christine Czuprynski and MH Business Exchange host Michael Witzke examine the new year's key cybersecurity trends on the 36th episode of the podcast series of McDonald Hopkins LLC.

The episode's release coincides with International Data Privacy Day on Tuesday, Jan. 28, 2020.

Czuprynski is a member of McDonald Hopkins' national Data Privacy and Cybersecurity Practice and focuses her practice specifically in the area of data privacy and cybersecurity. Topics she focuses on during the podcast include the unique challenges posed by the November election, how employers providing remote access for employees can also create opportunities for cyber criminals, new demands in recent ransomware attacks, the ongoing worry over attempts to compromise business email, and potential impacts of new cybersecurity legislation.
